

April 2021

Volume 26, Number 5

GEORGIA BAR
JOURNAL

From the Executive Director: Built to Last

Usufructs vs. Estates for Years: Why the Difference Matters in the Era of COVID-19

30th Annual Georgia
Bar Media & Judiciary
Conference

The Amazing (and Amazingly Misused)
Apostrophe

2021
ANNUAL MEETING

Isle of Palms, South Carolina | June 10-13

Honestly

Join with me in reflecting on and considering how the promises we made in the Attorney Oath of Admission should guide our professional and personal conduct as Georgia lawyers who act with professionalism and—honestly.

BY KARLISE Y. GRIER

It did not occur to me to think much about my attorney oath of admission until recently, after I read an article in the Daily Report that talked about a Texas judge who led attorneys in retaking their oath of office.<sup>1</sup> It prompted me to look for and more carefully consider the wording of the oath of admission I took when I became a Georgia lawyer. In doing some research on the attorney oath of admission, I learned that the oath I took, and the oath that is currently in use, were created as part of Georgia's professionalism movement.

On March 31, 1988, Chief Justice Thomas O. Marshall, along with State Bar of Georgia President A. James Elliott, gathered 120 prominent judges and lawyers from around the state to attend a "Consultation on Professionalism and The Practice of Law" hosted by Emory University's President James T. Laney at Emory's Houston Mill House. At the conclusion of the consultation, Hon. Griffin B. Bell, who had served as the 72nd attorney general of the United States,<sup>2</sup> made closing remarks that were captured in a transcript of the consultation.<sup>3</sup> In speaking about the attorney oath of admission, Bell said: "[W]hen we were admitted to the bar, we all made certain promises through the oath we took. We would do well, I think, to recall the original oath for attorneys and solicitors in the State of Georgia. That oath, taken from an English statute dated 1729 and used in our state until 1823, required that both attorneys and solicitors swear 'to truly and honestly demean themselves.' Many years later the wording of the oath was changed to require that lawyers 'justly and uprightly demean themselves.' Perhaps we should have stayed with the old oath. The words 'truly and honestly' just seem to be stronger. And therefore, it might be a good idea to readopt the old oath as a part of our new emphasis on professionalism."<sup>4</sup> The Supreme Court of Georgia did readopt some of the wording of the 1729 oath, and in particular, the words "that I will truly and honestly demean myself. ..."

The oath used after the consultation until 2002 read as follows: "I, _____, swear that I will truly and honestly, justly, and uprightly demean myself, according to the laws, as an attorney, counselor, and solicitor, and that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Georgia. So help me God."<sup>5</sup>

This is the attorney oath of admission that I would have taken in July 1992. Ten years later, in 2002, the oath was again revised to make the wording more relevant to the current practice of law, while retaining the original language calling for lawyers to "truly and honestly" conduct themselves.<sup>6</sup> The current oath, which was approved by the Supreme Court of Georgia on April 22, 2002, and which remains in place today reads: "I, _____, swear that I will truly and honestly, justly and uprightly conduct myself as a member of this learned profession and in accordance with the Georgia Rules of Professional Conduct, as an attorney and counselor, and that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Georgia. So help me God."<sup>7</sup>

In 1988, why did Griffin Bell believe that it might be a good idea to readopt the oath dating back to 1729, which contained the words "truly and honestly" as a part of Georgia's new emphasis on professional-

